2. Positioning of the Company within the corporate group of the parent company and other relationships between the Company and the parent company

- a. Positioning of the Company within the corporate group of the parent company

Toyota Tsusho Corporation, which is the parent company of the Company, has achieved growth primarily in automobile-related businesses as a trading company of the Toyota Group. In segments other than the automobile segment, Toyota Tsusho has also carried out activities in a wide variety of business segments as a general trading company with the aim of realizing an affluent society. The Group consists of over 1,000 subsidiaries and affiliates in Japan and overseas, forming a global network for value creation based on their solid cooperation. The Company joined the Group as a member of the electronics segment, which the Group positions as an important strategic business, by concluding a capital and business alliance agreement. Since then, the Company has been making efforts to enhance customer services and improve corporate value by creating synergies in various aspects.

Toyota Tsusho also owns the majority of the voting rights of the Company and corresponds to the parent company and the largest shareholder, which is a major shareholder of the Company, with significant influence on the Company. Both companies recognize, however, that the Company maintains the listing of its shares and management independence under a capital and business alliance agreement between Toyota Tsusho and the Company.

Please note that the Company carries out its own business activities with practically no restrictions from the parent company, and the Company's business activities are not significantly dependent on transactions with the corporate group of the parent company.

b. Personnel relationships with the parent company

Among the nine Directors of the Company, two are concurrently serving as officers of Toyota Tsusho Corporation and the Company has accepted them as its Directors. Among the four Audit & Supervisory Board Members of the Company, one is concurrently serving as an officer of Toyota Tsusho Corporation and the Company has accepted him as its auditor. In addition, the Company has accepted one employee loaned from Toyota Tsusho for the purpose of personnel exchange.

3. Matters concerning transactions with controlling shareholders

They are not contained in this document because they are not significant.

4. Implementation of measures to protect minority shareholders in transactions with controlling shareholders

The Company and Toyota Tsusho Corporation have concluded a capital and business alliance agreement. This agreement provides that common interests of the Company's shareholders, including minority shareholders, must be recognized and respected in conducting transactions. For the execution of minority shareholder rights under the Companies Act, we make efforts so that such rights can be exercised smoothly in accordance with the execution procedure as stipulated in the rules for handling shares.

For transactions with the parent company, the rules of the Board of Directors of the Company provide that Directors or Audit & Supervisory Board Members who would be involved in such transactions must notify the secretariat of the Board of Directors of their appropriateness in advance. When the Company conducts transactions with its major shareholders, the Company negotiates prices and other terms and conditions individually and follows the same terms and conditions as those for general business partners.

For these procedures, we have established an administrative system so that transactions are conducted after obtaining internal approval.

Because business activities of the Company are not significantly dependent on transactions with the parent company, the Company recognizes that a certain level of independence from the parent company has been ensured.

As shown above, we are taking measures to protect minority shareholders in transactions with the parent company.
